Energy matching the outcome

Teboho Matjeka

Often times we use our energy to show those we think have wronged us that we are hurting. We want to prove our anger, however, it is in our anger that a few important aspects of life skip our minds, firstly, we can only be hurt by those who are central to our being, people who hold dearly, do we really need to prove anything to them, what benefit do we stand to get after proving a point? Do we ever think about the end results? Why should we use our energy to destroy what we want to enjoy? Having a relationship is something that should be for our good, that is productive, will fighting just to prove a point result in positivity?

Another issue, we feel the pain of what we think is people's actions simply because we are already unhappy with certain things on our lives so anything that gives us a chance to show how angry we are we certainly use it. We are a very angry nation and we rub each other with negativity all the time, but we never consider the end result of our actions. We act on an impulse, we don't use the opportunity to see the end before the beginning, are we using the energy that is going to match our expected outcome? Do we realise that most of the unpleasant experiences we have are self-inflicted?

We use our energy against our wishes. Let us learn to use our time and energy to get the results we want so as to use the appropriate energy. At times, we have a feeling that our loved ones have done or failed to do something hurting to us, we use all we have to show them what we feel; the question is, do we expect to still have a healthy relationship thereafter? If so why use our energy to kill what we expect life out of? Why delay moments of happiness and forgiveness to prove a point? It only makes sense if we could use our energy and time to get exactly what we want; the energy should match the expected outcome.

Media Release

For Immediate release 19 June 2024

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER EXITS HIS ROLE

The Road Fund stakeholders and public at large are hereby informed that the Road Fund long serving Chief Executive Officer of 11 years, Mr. Nkekeletse Makara will be exiting his role as the Chief Executive Officer on June 30, 2024.

Mr. Makara joined the Road Fund Secretariat in April 2013, and during his tenure, has made significant contributions to the growth and success of the organisation, to where he leaves it today.

Owing to his remarkable leadership, the Road Fund CEO exits his role in the middle of his tenure as the Chairperson of the African Road Maintenance Funds Association (ARMFA) Southern Africa Focal Group known as ASAFG. He has been leading ASAFG for one and half years.

The Road Fund Board, Management and Staff remain grateful to have had the CEO of Mr. Makara's calibre; his intelligence, integrity and determination will forever be cherished. All the best in your future endeavours Chief!

The Making of a Champion

"From Homemade Weights to Global Spotlight: The Inspirational Path of Tšepo Desmond Matsoso."

competitions to prestigious events like the Commonwealth Games and Arnold Classic Africa, his journey is a testament to compete."

One particular memory stands out. "We were getting ready for a show, training intensely, and an instructor, noticing our hunger, dismissively asked why we weren't going home. That moment fueled our determination, therefrom vowed to succeed and make him eat his words."

The Daily Grind

Matsoso's daily routine is a testament to his dedication.

His day starts at 4 am with meal preparation and a quick shower before heading to the gym to train clients. His schedule is packed with client sessions, his training, and meticulous meal planning. "Consistency, patience, and hard work are the pillars of success in this sport," he asserts.

Nutrition: The Foundation of Success

Nutrition, Matsoso emphasizes, is crucial. "There's no building muscle without proper nutrition. Whole foods are the foundation; supplements are just the cherry on top. It's about fixes. "Many want immediate results and turn to performance-enhancing drugs early on, which can be detrimental. It is important to understand that there is no shortcut to success. It's about commitment and surrounding yourself with the right people."

Professional Growth and Community Impact

Matsoso's journey from helping out at Genesis Gym

With aspirations of moving to Europe or the USA to participate in more professional shows, his journey continues. Collaborating with his friend Khauhelo and engaging with international coaches, he remains committed to learning and evolving in the sport. A recent trip to the Middle East exemplifies his dedication to staying updated with the latest advancements in bodybuilding.

A Testament to Perseverance

STAFF

In the heart of Qoaling, Ha Seoli, a young boy's dream was sparked by the muscle-bound heroics of Arnold Schwarzenegger in "Commando." Tšepo Desmond Matsoso, now a renowned bodybuilder, began his journey at just 13, fashioning cement weights to train due to a lack of proper equipment. His passion and determination were unwavering, even in the face of significant obstacles.

A Dream Takes Root

The pivotal moment in Matsoso's journey came when he joined Genesis Gym in Lithabane. Under the mentorship of Mojalefa Lekoekoe (Jeff), the gym's owner, Matsoso's potential was recognized and nurtured. "Jeff saw something in me that I hadn't yet seen in myself," Matsoso recalls. "He became not just a mentor, but a father figure, guiding me through rigorous training sessions and instilling in me the values of hard work and discipline."

Life at Genesis Gym was transformative. Matsoso balanced school, cleaning the gym and training others while committing to his grueling workouts. Jeff's mentorship and unwavering support laid the foundation for Matsoso's future successes. From local

Overcoming Financial Hurdles

Despite his natural affinity for bodybuilding, the path was anything but easy. Coming from a poor background and being raised by a single parent, the financial strains were immense. "Bodybuilding demands specific nutrition and supplementation, which was often beyond our means," he shares. "But we found ways to make it work. My friends, IFBB

PRO Khauhelo David Raphepheng and Liteboho Mahase, and I would bounce to earn money for transport and gym memberships. We even slept in taxi ranks like Welkom just to discipline and making the right choices, even if it means distancing yourself from friends who don't share your goals."

For beginners, Matsoso advises against seeking quick to becoming a certified trainer reflects his passion and dedication. "Every person's body is different. I learn about each client's unique needs and tailor their training accordingly. For me, this profession is a calling."

The bodybuilding scene in South Africa has been instrumental in Matsoso's growth. "South Africa offers better resources, more competition, and a larger population interested in the sport. Competing in the S.A. Champs annually has been crucial for our development. Everyone in the South African bodybuilding community knows us."

Chasing New Horizons

Now, Matsoso is chasing his NPC Pro card after returning his IFBB ELITE PRO Card.

Tšepo Desmond Matsoso's story is one of resilience, hard work, and the transformative power of mentorship. From lifting makeshift cement weights to competing on international stages, his journey inspires aspiring bodybuilders to dream big, work hard, and never give up.

In a world where success often seems linked to privilege and access, Matsoso's journey from the modest beginnings of Qoaling Ha Seoli to the glittering stages of international bodybuilding serves as a powerful reminder that determination, the right support, and relentless effort can overcome even the most daunting challenges.
