If we wish for it, we must believe it

When we look at our life and all that surrounds it there are things we wish to achieve or to have achieved by now. The most profound question that we ask ourselves or asked by others remains, why haven't we achieved to our full potential? We have to realistic sometimes and admit that some of the things we wish for don't come into being because we don't actually believe in them ourselves, therefore, their existence seems far-fetched. The energy we put doesn't match what we wish for because we have told our brains something different. Whenever we want anything in life we must make sure that there's a connection between what we desire and what we believe so that our energy levels are channeled towards the same direction.

What we wish for must first make sense to us before we can even think of selling it to others. We should be able to picture the end of what we want even before it's beginning. When we go out to pray for a rain we must carry an umbrella with a belief that when we are done praying it will start raining, thus, when we wish for anything we must prepare ourselves to receive, care for it and maintain it. When we want a car we must train ourselves to drive, build a garage or at least a shelter for that car, in that way we show that we believe in the reality of our dreams. Our dreams can only become a reality if we believe them, cherish them and nurture them.
